

Arlo Liang

Who he is:

Arlo is currently a graduate student at California State University, Fresno's general experimental master's program. Arlo was born in Qingdao, China and decided to come to the USA to gain his bachelor's in psychology at California State University, San Francisco.

Personal Interests:

He enjoys playing soccer and working out. He also likes to participate in sustainability volunteer initiatives when time permits.

Summary of Internship:

Arlo is currently serving as the Human Behavior Audit Energy AuditSM intern for fall 2021. The internship consists of helping people conserve energy by changing behaviors found through research. The most exciting aspect of this internship is being able to be a part of a good cause in helping the environment. After achieving his master's degree, he hopes to pursue a PhD degree in psychology to continue sustainability conservation efforts.