

Patrick Hernandez

Who he is:

Patrick is a resident of Fresno, California and in his senior year at Fresno State. Patrick has years of experience working with construction and engineering firms, which inspired him to pursue his current major: Construction Management.

Personal Interests:

He has a passion for engineering and architecture, and volunteers locally with the Habitat for Humanity.

Summary of Internship:

His role at NORESO is the Construction Management Intern. This internship consists of observing the construction process and helping to coordinate communications between all the project stakeholders. He assists with developing site plans, reviewing project reports, and coordinating construction status updates for sharing with the wider community.