

ETHICIST IN RESIDENCE

Dr. Andrew Fiala named Lyles Center's first-ever ethicist in residence

Dr. Fiala will establish programming to engage the Fresno State and Central Valley community in discussions regarding business ethics, stewardship and citizenship. This impactful partnership between the Lyles Center and The Ethics Center will be a great opportunity to raise Fresno State's stature as a focal point for ethics and leadership.

Dr. Andrew Fiala

- Fresno State Professor of philosophy since 2005
- Chair of the Philosophy Department since 2009
- Director of Fresno State's Ethics Center since 2007
- Religion and ethics columnist for The Fresno Bee

The Lyles Center

- A nationally-ranked entrepreneurship center founded in 2003
- Offers a wide expanse of programs to inspire students, faculty, alumni and community members to act on ideas that build a prosperous future for the Central Valley
- Currently hosts an entrepreneur in residence, as well as an intrapreneur in residence

“Fresno State has a responsibility to teach students to be good citizens, productive contributors to the economy, good stewards of the ecosystem, and ethical leaders.”

- Dr. Andrew Fiala, Lyles Center's Ethicist in Residence

“We are honored to have Dr. Fiala join our team. His expertise will expand the education and insights our students have access to, equipping them to be more thoughtful and well-rounded entrepreneurs.”

- Dr. Scott Moore, Lyles Center Interim Executive Director
