What is Sustainability?

Sustainability practices protect our natural environment and make our communities more attractive, economically stronger, and more socially diverse (EPA).

ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE

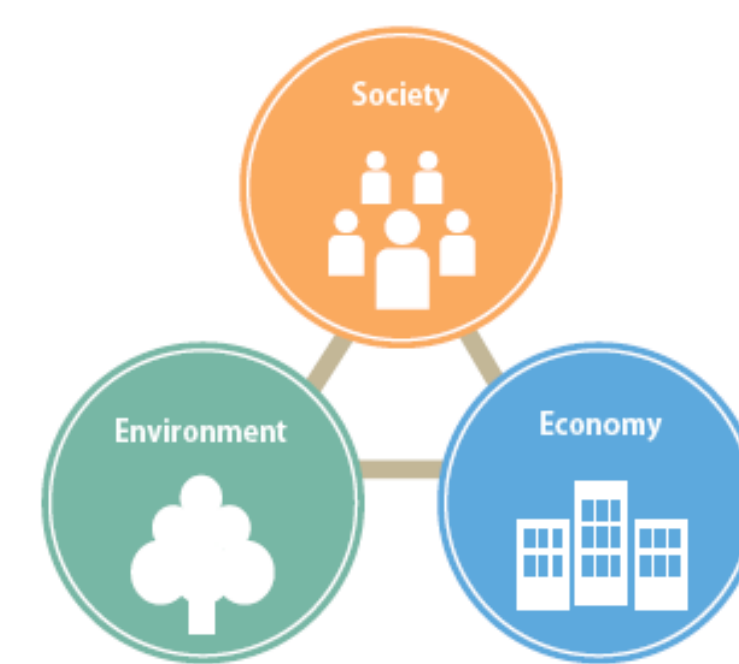

MISSION STATEMENT

The Sustainability Institute (SI) will promote solutions via learning, scholarship, engagement, and practice.

SI creates a central hub for interdisciplinary work among faculty, staff, students, administrators, and the community to:

- Empower student leadership and success through sustainability education and engagement
- Collaborate across campus and the community to foster sustainable environmental, social, and economic resources
- Promote scholarly research and creative work that provides sustainable solutions to regional issues with global significance
- Communicate sustainable practices that improve the campus and community
- Build an inclusive campus culture for all members to participate and create a sustainable campus, community, and future

PROPOSED PRESIDENTIAL COMMITMENT

- Align campus sustainability goals across academics, operations, student affairs, and athletics
- Sign the American College & University Presidents' Climate Commitment
- Participate in the AASHE and the STARS program

PROPOSALS FOR ACTION

- Support collaborative student-faculty-staff projects, academics, and research
- Create an academic degree path in sustainability
- Continue to implement energy production and conservation
